

Supporting the transition to clean energy

5 June 2024
10h Geneva time

#WorldEnvironmentDay

To mark World Environment Day, the WTO will be hosting an event on 5 June during which the opportunities for developing economies and least developed countries to exploit competitive advantages in clean energies will be discussed. One key challenge to tapping this potential is ensuring sustained financing support to help firms benefit from the opportunities that emerge during a clean energy transition.

An expert panel will highlight some of the trade-led development opportunities that can arise from expanding clean energy access. Discussions will seek to highlight that with adequate financing, developing countries can benefit from opportunities arising at various points along the clean energy value chain.

An agenda and zoom link (for those without badge access) will be circulated shortly.